

A large crowd of runners is participating in the Nashville Rock 'N' Roll Marathon & Half Marathon. The runners are running on a city street, and a large archway with the event's name and logos is visible in the background. The archway features the 'Rock 'N' Roll' logo, 'HALF MARATHON 10K', and 'CHICAGO' text. Other logos on the arch include 'Humana', 'Brooks', and 'Toyota'. The runners are wearing various athletic gear, including tank tops, t-shirts, and shorts, and many have race bibs. The scene is set in an urban environment with trees and buildings in the background.

Medics hit the Nashville marathon course as temperatures reached the 80s

USA TODAY NETWORK – Tennessee
CT Apr. 29, 2017 | Updated 3:09 p.m. CT Apr. 29, 2017

High temperatures sent some Nashville marathon runners to the hospital, and race organizers responded to the sweltering conditions by advising runners to the finish line early.

The weather service had warned of hot and humid conditions during the race, and race organizers had moved the start time of the race up 30 minutes to avoid safety issues.

As temperatures sailed into the 80s, medics worked alongside runners throughout the race. The Nashville Marathon's 26.2 mile course. Dozens of runners were treated as a result of heat-related health issues.
